AMERICAN GOVERNMENT INSTRUCTIONS

Assignment:

The student will research recently sponsored bills related to the community issue he/she is trying to solve. They will also profile local federally funded agencies that could be integral in solving the community problems.

Project Components and Descriptions:

Continuing with the same problem, you will now need to research recently sponsored bills that focus on your issue.

Your submission will need to cover the following areas:

- Identify personal factors
 - Identify any factors that involve individual behavior or community conditions (e.g., beliefs, skills, education, background, experience, culture, and assumptions about the world and others, as well as biological and genetic traits).
- Identify environmental factors
 - Identify any factors within the community environment that may do the same (e.g., availability or lack of services; social, financial, and other costs; overarching factors as poverty, living conditions, official policy, and economic conditions).
- Identify recently sponsored bills related to your issue
 - Research local government bills that relate to your issue. Identify how the bills plan to address the issue, if the research you found compares to the information in the bill, and if there is support for the measure.
- Identify federally funded agencies in your area that could help
 - (Note: These should generally be different than the organizations identified in mini-assignment 2.)
 - Are there any federally funded agencies that work in the area of your problem? Create a short profile for the agency and include their name, what they do, and any policies pertaining to your issue

You may submit this as a text document or a slide show. Be sure to include any references that are needed and use clear and concise writing.
